Nixon Prepares to Resume Campaign

Kennedy Ends Intensive Drive in California

Washington — Vice President Richard M. Nixon was out of the hospital today, ready to resume his drive for the presidency. His Democratic opponent, Sen. John F. Kennedy, wound up an intensive swing down the length of Nixon's home state of California.

Nixon left Walter Reed hospital last night after an 11-day layup from a knee infection. On Monday he'll start a 9,000-mile tour of 14 states with a breakfast sendoff from President Eisenhower at Baltimore's Friendship airport.

With Nixon back on his feet, Kennedy unleashed a few personal remarks at the vice president. He had avoided direct criticism while Nixon was hospitalized.

Invites California Test
"If you want to stand still under Vice President Nixon, vote Republican," Kennedy told a crowd outside a jammed auditorium in Los Angeles last night. "If you want to move, vote Democratic."

Inside, the crowd yelled approval when Kennedy said "I think this state of California is a good place to settle this election, right in Vice President Nixon's own backyard. I've come 6,000 miles and I'm not chasing butterflies. I'm after your support."

Again, Kennedy grappled directly with a campaign Turn to Page 10, Col 3

W. Germans Asked To Boycott Trade With Communists

Acting Chancellor Wants Voluntary Plan as Reprisal

BY CARL HARTMAN — had been expected following Berlin — Acting Chancellor Ludwig Erhard appealed yesterday on ways to counter the communist inter-businessmen for a voluntary boycott on trade with communist East Germany.

He proposed this as a western reprisal against the communist squeeze on Berlin. He declared the squeeze was not only against the isolated city and West Germany but against world freedom.

Erhard, head of the government while Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, is on vacation, spoke at the opening of the German industrial fair.

He said the communist regime of East Germany was trying to drive a wedge between West German businessmen and their government by pretending that whatever happened politically, trade could go on. He appealed for moral resistance to this effort.

Special Permits
The communists offered special permits to allow businessmen to go to the east sector of Berlin, barred to West Germans in general. "I believe the West German businessmen will make no use of these dirty papers," Erhard said.

He said that in West Germany there were no courts that could condemn people who accepted the communist invitations. "But the verdict will be spoken by the German citizen who cannot understand how people continue to trade with the east at this time," he declared.

Erhard's appeal for a voluntary boycott was less than

Customs Officials Hit Black Market

Nuernberg, Germany — German customs officials today reported breaking up a big black market ring dealing in U. S. Army cigarettes and coffee.

Nearly 300 German citizens and an unspecified number of American soldiers were involved in the operation, customs officials said.

Warrants were issued for the arrest of 21 ring leaders.

American soldiers were among the leaders but none was included in the arrest orders. Normally discipline in such cases is left to U. S. authorities.

There was no immediate comment on the case from army spokesmen.

Relief Sped To Stricken Islanders

Miami — Hurricane Donna, the killer storm which has left a trail of dead across the islands of the Atlantic, claimed its first Florida victim today.

The body of an unidentified white man was found at Tavernier, a small island south of here which was battered by the full force of Donna's sustained 135 mile an hour winds.

The highway patrol had no specific information on how the man died but listed him as a storm casualty.

"That's the first one," said Highway Patrol Dispatcher C. J. Johnson. "I hope there are not any more."

The Florida keys were raked last night and today by winds and tides which washed out bridge approaches, broke the main water line to Key West, piled seaweed three feet high across the Overseas highway, scattered trailers at a tourist camp for half a mile, and ripped the roof from a school building in use as a refuge.

Reports of Injuries
Earlier highway patrol reports that several people were injured on the keys could not be confirmed by the Red Cross at Miami. However, the Red Cross said there may be casualties still unreported.

Relief missions were headed southward from Miami and northward from Key West to the battered central islands of the chain of keys which curves southwestward from the mainland.

Doctors, medical supplies, field kitchens and food were on the way. The navy planned to dispatch five helicopters to the scene as soon as the winds slacken.

Islanders Removed
Meanwhile, the coast guard raced against time to remove more than 100 people who had fled to the keys. A. J. Samuels, general manager of Captiva Island off the Lee county coast of southwest Florida.

Two helicopters from the St. Petersburg Coast Guard station flew 80 persons to beach near Fort Myers where school buses took them to shelters.

A sheriff's deputy said the remainder of about 305 persons had elected to stay on.

Doubts Conflict Near

Truman Thinks Russia Will Avoid Showdown

New York — Former President Harry S. Truman pointing to Soviet actions in Cuba and the Congo, said today "The Russians are all-powerful. They are all-powerful when you meet them head on they get out of the way."

Truman, talking to newsmen on his customary early morning walk, said enforcement of the Monroe Doctrine in the Cuban situation would "not necessarily" lead to an armed clash with Russia.

"The fact that we mean to enforce it (the doctrine) will be enough to put it into effect," he added.

Russian actions in Cuba and the Congo were described by the former president as a continuation of policies pursued by the Soviet Union in Korea, Greece, Turkey and in Germany during the Berlin blockade.

He pointed out that it was not necessary to resort to arms in any of these situations, except in Korea and in that the fighting was a U. N. undertaking, not a United States affair.

Truman said he will make six or eight campaign speeches for the Democratic ticket but declared reports that he plans to stump New York state were a mistake.

Plans to Talk in Dixie
He said he expects to speak in New York City and also has definite commitments to deliver campaign talks in Raleigh, N. C., on Oct. 13 and in Abingdon, Va. on Oct. 15.

He also plans major speeches in other southern cities, Truman added.

He conceded the Democrats now are having trouble in the south, but said the south always thinks the trouble there is more serious than it actually is.

Truman also took the occasion to again condemn the injection of religious bias into the campaign. "It would be a crime if our country gets a reputation of being a bunch of bigots, either Catholic or Protestant," he said.

Lumumba Tells UN of War Peril

Requests 'All Nations' to Help in Restoring Peace

BY LYNN HEINZERLING

Leopoldville, the Congo — Premier Patrice Lumumba called on Sec. Gen. Dag Hammarskjold and all U. N. members today "to prevent the Congo from becoming a battlefield of World War III."

Lumumba made the appeal in a letter. He asked the intervention of "all nations" to help restore peace to this politically and militarily divided nation.

Embattled President Joseph Kasavubu stood firm in his determination to end Lumumba's rule and rid the Congo of communist influences.

Informants close to Kasavubu said he is going ahead with his announced plan to form a new government headed by the senate's moderate president, Joseph Ileo, despite parliamentary rejection of the presidential decree declaring Lumumba fired.

Reads Letter to U. N.

Lumumba summoned newsmen and diplomats to his luxurious villa to read his letter to the U. N., whose security council meets in New York again today to weigh control policies criticized by Congolese and communists.

Only two or three ambassadors showed up, representing mainly African nations. Lumumba spoke after a 2 1/2-hour meeting with Rajeshwar Dayal of India, newly named head of the U. N. Congo operation.

He said he again protested against what he described as U. N. interference in the Congo's internal affairs and demanded the restoration of control of the nation's airports and radio to the Congo.

Hammarskjold Defends Course

UN Council to Resume Session This Afternoon

United Nations, N. Y. — Sec. Gen. Dag Hammarskjold defended the seizure of Congo airports and Leopoldville radio by U. N. forces in a mid-night session of the security council.

Under fire from the communist bloc, he put the issue squarely up to the 11-nation council for "its consideration and instruction."

After a 4-hour session that carried on until after midnight, the council adjourned until this afternoon to debate the actions of the U. N. peace force trying to keep order in the turbulent African nation.

Congo Premier Lumumba has called on the 16,000 U. N. troops to get out of the Congo unless they give back the airports and radio station.

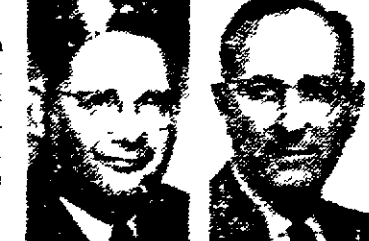

Hammarskjold and Yugoslav Delegate Dobrovic, both of whom had asked the council to meet, clashed over the wisdom of U. N. control over the installations.

Before they spoke, the council turned down a Soviet proposal that it accept an invitation from Lumumba to hold an immediate special meeting in Leopoldville to study the Congo situation first hand.

Nikita Told Not to Leave Manhattan

United Nations, N. Y.

— The United States notified the Soviet Union today that Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev during his visit to New York must not travel off Manhattan island.

In a memorandum delivered to the Soviet U. N. delegation, the United States requested that arrangements be made for the Soviet leader to reside as near as possible to U. N. headquarters and to limit his movements to those required by his official mission as head of the Soviet delegation to the United Nations.

U. S. sources said similar restrictions were being placed on Hungarian communist party chief Janos Kadar and Mehmet Shehu, premier of Albania.

The U. S. memorandum said the restrictions were being imposed in order to provide adequate security for the communist leaders.

Air Defense Exercise

6-Hour Sky Shield Test Ended by U. S., Canada

Washington — Screaming through skies cleared of all commercial planes, jet interceptors thundered destruction threats against bombers for six hours early today in the biggest test ever made of North American air defenses.

Then with dawn the warplanes of the United States and Canada began settling back at their bases, finished with their demonstration of might and a giant test of effectiveness.

There was no immediate evaluation of the results of the test. Exercise Sky Shield, a brief communique issued by Gen. Laurence S. Kuter, chief of the North American Air Defense command (NORAD), merely said that the 6-hour operation had been carried on and completed at 7 a. m. EST.

Kuter's joint command, based at Colorado Springs with deputies from all services of the United States and Canada, is responsible for defense of the two nations against attack by manned bombers.

Secrecy Prevails
During the 6-hour interlude all U. S. and Canadian commercial aviation was grounded while jet bombers and fighters roamed the air, picket ships at sea tracked with radar and missile launching crews went through the motions of sending their weapons aloft.

The military, imposing as much secrecy as it could on an operation involving hundreds of warplanes, clamped top security on the exercise. Headquarters of the North American Air Defense com-

Opportunities at Center Equal Those Offered at Madison

Nine Courses Added to Program Of Instruction at UW Extension

More than 300 students at will be available for the first time. The new University of Wisconsin Fox Valley Center will have academic opportunity equal to that offered at the university in Madison.

All-new space, equipment and faculty members for a greater number of students than ever attended the old Menasha Extension are the result of the recently-completed home of the center on Midway road.

Freshmen and sophomores will select courses from a curriculum that is, with a few minor exceptions, the same as that of the Madison school. All the equipment and materials they would use in Madison will be available to them. A qualified faculty, large enough to give them better attention than they could receive at the parent school, will instruct them.

Nine New Courses
Nine new courses will be added to last year's curriculum of 23. Most of these are sciences and foreign languages, areas which were largely neglected in the old Menasha Extension program. Physics, chemistry, two mathematics courses and microbiology will supplement geography and four mathematics courses, the only sciences taught last year. Introductory German, French and Spanish

Sale Starts of Adult Season Grid Tickets

Kaukauna — Sale of adult season tickets for Kaukauna High school grid games started this week and will continue through the home opener against Kimberly, according to Guy Krumm, athletic director.

Purchasers of tickets insure themselves of a seat between the 40-yard lines for all four games. Three are evening tilts while the home opener will be at 3:30 p.m. on a Friday. All home games this year are conference tests as the lone non-loop tilt is to be played at Sheboygan.

The extension system was originally designed in 1946 to offer two years of instruction as similar as possible to the freshman-sophomore program of the University of Wisconsin at numerous centers throughout the state. The new building in Menasha will allow the complete accomplishment of this goal in the area served by the Fox Valley Center.

"The level of instruction will be much better than that in Madison," center director Verne Imhoff, who taught in Madison for 20 years, has said. "It has been proven in a number of studies that students who transfer to the Madison campus in their junior year, having spent their first two years at an extension center, do better than those who have spent all four years in Madison."

Imhoff emphasizes the quality of the faculty as a major factor in the quality of the instruction. "Sixteen of our 25 instructors have their Ph.D.s and the other six are within reach of theirs," he said in an interview.

Explaining the organization of the extension system, he said, "The centers are almost completely centrally controlled. They are ultimately under the direction of the Dean of Extensions and the Dean of Freshmen and Sophomores in Madison. Faculty members are hired by department heads there."

Students at the Fox Valley Center make application directly to the University in Madison. They can transfer there at any point in the school year without losing ground, for the schedule of the centers and the parent school are identical.

After Nearly an Hour of questions fired at Sen. William Proxmire by Kimberly High school students Friday, some still sought answers after the program was completed. Shown as the senator squats on the stage to answer are, left to right, Dave Manley, Dave Minten and Dave Hanann.

Committee Will Study Law on Keeping Fowl

Kaukauna — A discussion on revising the city ordinance to permit keeping of pigeons will be held at a meeting of the legislative committee at 7 p.m. Tuesday.

The board of health recommended a change in the ordinance to permit the keeping of pigeons and suggested an annual $1 license fee for raising the birds. The deputy health officer will check pigeon coops. The recommendation is a result of a request by some citizens who wish to raise and race homing pigeons.

City ordinance currently prohibits the raising of any fowl in the city.

Discussion will also be held on location of arterials and the establishment of a truck route on Tobacco street.

OFFICIAL WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION FILES SHOW AMAZING TREND

According to official statistics low back injuries rank third among compensable injuries. The sacro-iliac joints, situated where the base of the spine joins the large hip bones are the seat of much pain and trouble.

Statistics taken from the Iowa Workman's Compensation files reveal a startling trend. Approximately 18,000 cases were involved in the survey. The data covers all low back cases between February 1946 and 1948 which were incurred through strains and sprains.

In general the statistics revealed that under chiropractic care total work days lost: average cost of professional care per case; average cost compensation paid per case; average loss of wages to worker per case was 33% less than when treated by other methods. Many industrial firms find it profitable to have their workers kept in "shape" by chiropractic health service.

We need more vocational schools, higher academic standards, and we must pay our teachers in competition with other fields, so as to attract and keep the better qualified. New Season Develops Fugue on Old Theme

Shirley Temple Appears to be Brightest Prospect in Year's Rash of Premieres

BY JINGO
The TV anniversaries and premieres will be coming fast and furious in the nights to come. A musically minded viewer might very well consider the next frantic fortnight or so as a wild fugue made from a variation on a theme. Twists there may be, but something new is unlikely.

There are some bright spots in prospect. Jingo will let the opening shows register their own degree of brightness. So, with little comment, here is a listing of some of the "new" shows — as the time permits.

Channel 2 on Wednesday will premiere "The Aquanauts." Lloyd Bridges has done so well in "Sea Hunt" all by himself, it figures two divers will double the success.

Next Saturday the CBS eye will be on "Checkmate." The twist to this whodunit is that the detectives will attempt to prevent the crime.

The darling of our youth may become the real darling of the season. Shirley Temple premieres her new series on Channel 5 on Sept. 18. She will stage wonderful children's classics with fine casts, including herself in some.

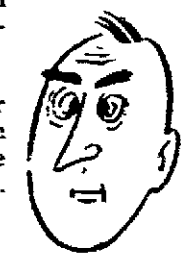

Next Sunday, Shirley stars in "The Land of Oz" with Jonathan Winters. Ben Blue, aboard to help and hinder Sterling Holloway. G. I. history is promised for the script.

Seeking viewers who only want half of "Riverboat" is ABC's "Pete and Gladys." This may set a dangerous trend. The show is an off-spring of "December Bride," which is said to be quite popular.

WWI Veterans to Meet To Discuss Pensions
World war I veterans in Outagamie county will meet at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at Moose hall to discuss pension rights and future pension possibilities.

The meeting is sponsored by the Wisconsin department of the Veterans of World War I. R. J. Barbera, deputy chief of staff, and Jack Macco, Wisconsin department commander, will be speakers.

Bucking Shirley on ABC manner, will be speakers. Both are from Green Bay. The new twist is a The veterans group was cousin from Britain trying to charter in 1958 and has fill in for the original James, 200,000 members.

15 to 5 Softball Score? Elderly Policemen Wallop Youngsters

BY JACK GLASNER
Post-Crescent Staff Writer
The Appleton police department's elderly men met the fledglings in an athletic contest Wednesday evening.

Although the 15 to 5 triumph of the elderly men sounds like football, it was a softball game.

11 Runs?
Patrolman Vernal Remter started the ball game as the younger fellows' pitcher. He let 11 runs in, including the first three walked batters, before the coach took him out.

Remter was followed by Patrolman Robert Acord, who had a little more luck during the next seven innings.

Remter's fate grew a little more ghastly as the fourth man he faced got aboard on a teammate's error and Patrolman William Forster smacked his next effort out of the park, clearing the decks for further frustration.

Umpires John Bauer, (city recreation department umpire), George Greisch (district attorney) and Jack Zuelzke (sheriff's investigator) bent over backwards to get the side out, the old codgers (which they call themselves) claimed.

Theft of Homer?
Forster was called out at the plate to end the first inning in what the old men described as the theft of his second home run of the inning.

Carlton Bork pitched the old timers to their 11-hit (which produced 15 runs) victory, holding the rookies to five hits. Patrolman John Hermans got the only extra base hit for the youngsters.

Home runs were hit by oldsters Carl Thiel, Robert Breckinridge and Forster.

Extra baggers for the oldtimers were hit by Don Paulie, Forster (again), Clarence Denny and Vilas Burmeister.

Norbert Marx pitched the last four innings for the oldsters in the seven inning contest.

Break point for oldsters is over 30.

Paladin Has Been Changing In Character
Grim Gun-Toter Has Mellowed, Says Star Boone

BY CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Movie-TV Writer
Hollywood —P— The faithful Saturday night audience probably is not aware of it, but during the last three years that grim and steely avenger of the old west, Paladin, has been turning into a terribly nice guy.

At least, Richard Boone says and as star of CBS' "Have Gun, Will Travel," he ought to know.

"The character has developed a good deal," reflected Boone. "He has acquired a sense of humor, for one thing. He's not as arrogant as he used to be. His constant emphasis on money has disappeared. And we've been putting some lemon in what started out to be a pretty saccharine view of the old west."

Paladin, in fact, has become such a jolly fellow that there will soon appear on our screens an episode of "Have Gun, Will Travel," which is pure, flat and broad comedy — about baseball. It will come along in the schedule, naturally, around World Series time.

Boone, incidentally, is one of a mere handful of actors who have moved from one successful series into another: he went from playing a modern doctor in "Medic" to the present series. He says that he has planned things carefully so that there is no danger his own professional identity will be sunk in the part of Paladin.

Boone says that, whatever the ratings of the current series — and they remain among the highest in TV — he will stay with it only through the next two seasons, when his 5-year contract is up.

Electronic Device Able to Measure Red Blood Cell Count

Scientists have developed an electronic device which can accurately measure a person's red blood cell count in less than a minute, a nationwide magazine says.

Parakeet Got Shiner By Flying Into Door

The equipment, called an electronic hematocrit, is much faster and is described as a "precision" method of taking such blood counts. As usually performed, red blood cell counting is a highly inaccurate technique.

The electronic equipment is contained in a portable battery-powered unit that requires a very small sample of blood.

The new device is also significant because in the past applied electronic in the field of medicine and biophysics has been largely limited to pure research. Electronics is now being used to develop practical instruments.

The POWER of FAITH

by Howard Brodie

Submariners of Our Nuclear fleet carry faith into the depths of the sea. Space limitations prevent chaplains from sailing with the subs on long missions, but members of the crews conduct their own services. Tape recordings of hymns and sermons are provided. There are worship kits containing a chalice, a reversible crucifix, communion kit, candle sticks and altar cloths. This sketch is based from details of religious services in the mess hall aboard the USS Triton during its round the world cruise this year.

School Problems

Recently the superintendent of schools at Menomonee Falls discovered he had about 500 more students enrolling this year than last. As he pointed out "that's enough to fill a good-sized school."

We do not know how well prepared he was for this increase but he appeared to be taking it rather calmly and proposed that if necessary some additional space could be rented to house them.

Menomonee Falls serves as a good example for the increased enrollments in schools all over the country. Most localities have been building additional classrooms in preparation for the increased enrollment and thus are in a pretty good position to handle them. However, there are more problems than housing. Every school with 500 additional pupils will need additional teachers and as everyone knows good teachers are scarce.

The plan to relieve the teacher shortage by enrolling mothers, retired businessmen and army officers with academic backgrounds, to assist in the teaching of students in the nation's schoolrooms will be tested this fall according to the Insiders' Newsletter.

There are three phases to a plan to supplement the teaching force backed by the Ford Foundation for the advancement of education. One is to put older married women with liberal arts educations into teaching. At Converse College, Spartanburg, S. C. a year of formal training and a master of arts degree in teaching will be offered to some of these women. Co-operating schools will provide teaching practice for the people in training there.

As another part of the program, housewives with college training will be hired to read and correct students' English compositions. This part of the plan has been developed at Rutgers University as a part of the blueprint to reorganize English teaching. With the help of the readers, students will be able to receive a corrected weekly assignment whereas previously they were able to submit only four papers a year. It is believed that with the help of these assistants the colleges will be able to develop more literate graduates and release their better teachers for regular classroom work.

The General Electric company has worked out a plan for retiring employees with the Ford-supported Retired Professors' Registry. A survey by the company indicates that over half of its qualified employees are interested in early retirement with pension privileges in order to teach. The Department of Defense, which also makes use of the Retired Professors' Registry says it has some 24,000 soon to be retired officers ready and willing to take up teaching careers.

It is quite obvious that we have much teacher talent stored away among our college educated housewives, our industrial workers and military men, much of which can become available with the present early retirement plans offered by the military and the many industrial firms.

Martin and Mitchell

The defection of two former employees of the National Security Agency is another skirmish in the cold war. Acceptance of the fact that we have been at war with Soviet Russia for more than ten years and probably will be for more decades puts the defections as well as various spy activities in their proper perspective.

William Martin and Bernon Mitchell have the right, under our interpretation of freedom and free speech, to disapprove of the American policy in waging the cold war, and they have the right to express disapproval. But when they slunk off to the Soviet Union and paraded their opinions for a propaganda TV show, they were giving aid and comfort to the enemy in a time of war. This is treason!

But Americans should not be extremely agitated about the publicity. The Russians use all sorts of people for their purposes, including the two Polish-Americans who recently came out against the United States, and the two Britons who fled to Russia several years ago and have been turning out second rate propaganda ever since. Finding confused, alarmed and unstable people who can echo Soviet opinions is an accepted strategy of the propaganda war.

Defense against this strategy includes

Beer and Brandy

Practically anybody, except hard-nosed people from St. Louis, would expect Wisconsin to lead the nation in the amount of beer consumed on the premises. The large percentage of Germans and the emphasis upon the industry probably is the cause. But for some still unexplained reason Wisconsin residents drink more brandy per capita than those of any other state. And the amount is a stunning nine times the national average.

Brandy is a form of concentrated wine, but Wisconsin people don't have as much wine as those of California, New York, Ohio or other heavy grape producing states. Wine and brandy both have strong old country ties but why does Wisconsin accept the one and reject the other? Brandy advertising strikes no particular spark. Scotch distillers now aim at the aristocratic set or the he-man variety, bourbon ads emphasize the Americanism of a home-grown and produced brew, the Irish have gone in for extensive whimsy. Some brandies have big, pretty bottles and there are a variety of colors and flavors, and the drink is particularly warming in the long, cold Wisconsin winter, but what exactly is the lure?

Somebody should make a thorough survey of who in Wisconsin drinks all the brandy and why. And we'll bet that somebody will be brandy distillers.

Looking Backward

Democrats Busy Tub-Thumping

100 YEARS AGO

Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for the week of Sept. 8, 1890.

The Democrats raised a huge hickory on Thursday last. A delegation of over 100 went to Neenah from Appleton on the steamer Pearl with the Douglas Band.

The gathering was a small one, few farmers being able to spare the time to attend the meeting. Judge Larrabee made a telling speech. Emil Rothe of Watertown made an eloquent speech in German. Gabriel Rouch of Oshkosh spoke for a short time in his usual plain and forcible style.

Several converts were made, and several weak kneed brethren were strengthened in the faith.

Judge Larrabee will stir up the entire district to do all in his power to bring out the Old Guard so that Douglas may have a 6,000 majority in the Third Congressional district of Wisconsin.

Ending in the resignation of C. K. Boyer from the school board, and a quarrel that stemmed its way down the stairs and out into the street, the council meeting the previous night was the most confused and the most dramatic session held in the council chamber in years.

After hours of site talk, suggestions of compromise, determined statements of attitude and visionary pictures of the future, the council finally voted its approval of three possible sites: The City park, State street and the present site with additional property.

Lacey Horton, prelate and a past commander of the Appleton commandery Knights Templar, was elected grand warden of the Wisconsin Grand commandery of Wisconsin at a business session at the Masonic temple.

Dr. George T. Hegner was to be guest speaker at the breakfast meeting at Holy Name society of St. Joseph church Sunday morning.

Kaukauna Mayor John H. Nielsen appointed Harry F. McAndrews as city attorney and the council decided to defer action on confirming the appointment until the next meeting.

First Frogman Had a Lot of Fun

BY PETER LYON

Well out to sea from New York and bound for Liverpool, Capt. Bragg, master of the steamer Queen, was con-sternated one October evening in 1874 to see a figure clad in rubber from head to toe waddle purposefully toward the rail. He raced from the bridge to lay hands on the apparition, which was bristling with all the equipment of an Eagle Scout in parade uniform: Canteen.

Years before there was such a term as skindiver, an intrepid fellow took to sea in a good rubber canteen that made him look like a human kayak. He swam, paddled and cooked on the bobbing across the English channel, and quickly became a hero. This was in 1875, when many people didn't even dare get out in salt water. His adventures are told here by the co-author of the American Heritage Book of the Pioneer Spirit.

food canister, axe, signal lights, rockets, compass, knife, and small double-bladed paddle.

"Where do you think you're going?" he demanded.

"Ashore," said the figure, and added remorsefully that this was his only course for he was a wicked stowaway.

Since the nearest shore was 250 miles away, Bragg concluded he had collared a madman. He insisted on peeling off the rubber garment, to discover within a lean, merry adventurer named Paul Boyton.

Lifesaving Device

He asked his guest about the rubber suit. This was the invention of a Pittsburgh manufacturer, designed as a lifesaving device for transatlantic steamship passengers. Supple and absolutely watertight, the suit had compartments for air behind the head, at the back, at the chest, and along each thigh. In it, with only his face exposed, a man could float vertically or go swimming along on his back, propelled first by a paddle at the rate of 100 strokes a minute; the suit was, in effect, a kayak.

Already Boyton had paddled for miles out to sea, but he was seeking a sterner test. For this he had stowed away, and as the Queen neared the Irish coast, Capt. Bragg decided he should have his chance.

On the evening of Oct. 21, some 30 miles offshore, while the Queen rolled in a sullen sea, Boyton went overboard.

That was at 9 o'clock. By 11, the sea was raging, and before dawn 56 vessels would be smashed on the shores of the British Isles. But Paul Boyton paddled on. Thirty miles he paddled, past the southernmost tip of County Cork, and then up Roaring-water Bay to Skibbereen. The barefoot fisherfolk refused to believe him, but by the time he got to Cork the cables had carried his story, and two continents were acclaiming him as a hero. One hundred thousand curious flocked to watch him paddle down the Liffey and across Dublin Bay. More scores of thousands saw him float down the Thames. Queen Victoria received him at the Isle of Wight and presented

Captain Boyton Attempts to Swim the Channel

A French newspaper published these drawings of Boyton's attempt in April, 1875, to cross the English Channel between Dover and Boulogne. Bad weather forced him to give up a few miles off Cape Gris-Nez, but in May he crossed successfully—in the other direction—in 24 hours.

him with a gold chronometer.

Dared he attempt the English Channel? But of course. To the accompaniment of intense excitement in May, 1875, he paddled tranquilly from Cape Gris-Nez to Fan Bay, enjoying his lunch and puffing on a cigar as he went; on arrival he was welcomed by an 11-gun salute and a cablegram from President Grant.

He negotiated all the major rivers of Europe and the United States, sometimes trailing a tiny boat he called the Baby Mine, in which he stowed food and cooking equipment. His income from exhibitions soared to $2,000 a week.

Prank on British

After a time, merely floating downstream began to pall. Then Peru got embroiled with Chile in one of their periodic struggles, and Boyton's spirits revived. He entered the Peruvian naval service, and, as he told it, paddled silently out, under cover of night, to a Chilean man-of-war, affixed to her 125 pounds of dynamite, and thereby broke the Chilean blockade — though Peru lost the war. When he returned to New York he held the rank of captain in the Peruvian navy.

He opened a bar and grill in New York. To relieve tedium, he was reduced to playing pranks on Her Majesty's Royal Navy.

In May, 1885, the British Lion was irritated. His tail was being tweaked by Irish Fenians in America and yanked by Imperial Russia over a border dispute in northwest Afghanistan.

While this crisis was bubbling, a Russian corvette, the Strelak, and a British man-of-war, the Garnet, had coincidentally dropped anchor in New York harbor. Boyton undertook to soothe the doctored of the moment by showing how simple it would be to blow the Garnet out of the water.

As privily as possible, considering that he was attended by two or three friends and a noisy gaggle of newspaper reporters, Boyton went to the docks with a dummy torpedo, found an Irish boatman, and told him he planned to attach it to the Garnet. "Oh wurr!" said the boatman enthusiastically. "For five dollars I'm in for the night wid yez."

The conspirators were first rowed to Staten Island. They proceeded to the barroom of the Bay View Hotel to fortify their spirits, and here were nearly foiled before they had fairly begun. For the barroom was full of British bluejackets. To allay suspicion, one of the reporters remarked casually, "I'll bet a fiver the white dog licks the brindle." For a few minutes there was lively talk of an imaginary—and illegal—fight to be staged between two imaginary bull terriers.

Police Arrive

But the talk had aroused one righteous citizen, and he slipped out to notify the police. Before long the place was surrounded. Plainly the reporters insisted that their talk had been a joke. A hack driver who had confidently expected to earn a pretty penny by transporting all the sports to their fighting pit, was so disturbed that he slugged a reporter. That did it. Everybody was arrested.

It took Boyton and his party an hour to talk themselves out of captivity. When they returned, the atmosphere was serene. Boyton led the way to the shore.

The Garnet lay in the Narrows. Boyton slipped silently into the water, towing the torpedo behind him. He meant to float down upon the British ship on the tide; but on his first cast, he came alongside an American cutter. She seemed to be too small to be the Garnet, so he called out, "What vessel is this?" An astonished American marine answered it was the Endeavor.

Wrong Target

"Well, then, let me come alongside and take away a torpedo I've tied to her by mistake."

"For God's sake, take it away quick!"

Boyton paddled away for a second try. He lashed his torpedo to the Garnet, but his paddle made a chunking sound as he pulled to get away. At once came a voice, "Ahoy, there! What's that?"

"Only a log," answered Boyton, "floating in the water."

"Stop there! Who are you?"

"It's all right, gentlemen," shouted Boyton, paddling fast. "I'm only fishing! Trolling, you know! You've got a torpedo, fast to your vessel!" By this time he was out of pistol range, so he blew a blast on a trumpet, as a signal to his party to come fetch him. But behind him a British bugle sounded the call to quarters, and before Boyton could be hauled aboard his boat, here came a steam launch with a lieutenant, a midshipman, and a half-dozen bluejackets with rifles cocked.

Landing Repulsed

Boyton's reaction to this armed party was characteristic. He clambered aboard the launch, grabbed a rifle leveled at his breast, and wrenched it from the blue-jacket's hands, saying, "You can't shoot with that thing—I don't believe it's loaded." At once another sailor flourished a cutlass at him, but Boyton brushed that aside too. The English officers were convinced there had been no serious mischief and Boyton rejoined his party.

But still the Royal Navy was suspicious. The launch pursued the boat to the wharf, and the bluejackets essayed a landing. Once again they were frustrated. For now they were confronted by a red-shirted constable named Keiley; he produced a nickel-plated pistol that might have harmed a chicken, and in a fruity brogue announced: "I don't want any gang of Englishmen pointing guns at Staten Island."

The publicity from this and similar exploits guaranteed Boyton all the promotion he needed when he put together an aquatic circus and toured the country offering exhibitions. For by the time he was in his 40s, his urge to risk his life had abated; he was content to display his juggling sea lions, his water races, his high divers, and sit back while the money rolled in.

Campaign Expenses Just Window Dressing

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison — This is the reason for the filing of the campaign expense accounts of the candidates for elective office with the county clerks and the secretary of state, in compliance with a law written nearly half a century ago as a contribution to the popular control of government.

The student of political affairs who has examined these statements for a period of some years, however, must confess to some grave doubts whether the noble purposes of that law have been served.

The men who wrote the Wisconsin corrupt practices act, as it is called with what is perhaps unnecessarily strong language, were fearful about the uses of money in the electoral process, and hopeful that if the full facts about the expenditure of money on the influencing of votes were published, the people would react accordingly.

That was a laudable purpose, no doubt.

But what of the results?

ENFORCEMENT

The law can work successfully only if the public press conveys the information that the candidates and the parties are required to file for the record.

An essential part of the publicity is the source of the campaign fund. But as the reports are filed it is virtually impossible even for an extraordinarily curious and conscientious reporter to give an account of the source of much of the money spent in politics. For example, there is no requirement for the complete identification of donors. The fact that John Jones contributed to Peter Smith's campaign for congressman, or governor, or sheriff, means nothing unless John Jones can be identified. In a majority of the cases the campaign committees and the candidates follow the letter of the law, and merely list the name, sometimes with a quasi-anonymous first initial only.

Nor is there any way for the voter to be assured, even with the maximum publicity possible under these circumstances, that what is reported is the actual fact about campaign spending.

First, the campaign committee or the candidate may make late commitments, for election eve publicity, for example, that are not reportable until after the votes are polled and counted. He may even arrange, it may be supposed, for his accounts payable to be submitted conveniently for that purpose.

Second, and this is the heart of the matter, there is no provision for enforcement. In practical terms a candidate or his campaign manager need not worry about an audit of his expense account in a campaign — as he must for his expense accounts in tax matters, for example. He need worry only about the possibly prying eyes of his rivals for the office he is seeking.

CORRECTION?

Similarly there are many suggestively vague descriptions of the uses to which campaign money is put. An examination of some of the campaign statements on file recently found some of them virtually unintelligible — in spite of the generous amounts of money involved.

All of this is not to say that there is a deliberate hanky-panky in this long-standing requirement of the Wisconsin political process, although any seasoned political reporter knows numbers of politicians whose habits make him skeptical.

It does suggest, however, that the reliance upon this ancient law may be misplaced, in view of the casual and even routine compliance. The goals of the original law may be difficult to achieve. But it is worth noting that the legislature which has hesitated to order a total revision has not hesitated to make specific amendments, such as those which have permitted larger expenditures over the years for most of the offices on the ballot.

2 Teenagers Live Huck Finn Saga on Mississippi River

Complete 200-Mile Journey in Outboard; Camp Out Along Shore

Two Appleton teenagers youths admitted their own have done what many an adult has dreamed of doing—live a real life Huck Finn saga on the Mississippi river.

Jim Slezak, 15, of 1509 N. Douglas street, and Pete Wenzel, 16, of 1518 Albia drive, this summer completed a 200-mile boat trip on the famed "Father of Waters" from McGregor, Iowa, to Muscatine, Iowa. The trip took just about a week and the boys accomplished it with about as much trouble as they'd have going to the corner grocery store.

The boys "put in" at McGregor with a 14-foot boat, a 45-horse outboard, a minimum of cash and a maximum of enthusiasm. They carried an emergency supply of fuel and camping gear.

The trip down river took the longest time, Pete and Jim said. "We didn't want to hurry and we didn't want to miss anything," they reported.

Nights were spent camping on the many sandbars which cut into the big river. The weather was perfect for such an outing. "We didn't have a drop of rain either down or back," the boys said. The most disturbing part of the journey, they said, was the sound of trains operating on either side of the river. We'd just get to sleep when one of these things would come along. They always seemed to blow their whistles when they were near our camp," they recalled.

Both Jim and Pete were wary at the start of the trip, about wildlife they might encounter along the way. "We were especially worried about snakes," they said. "Everybody had warned us about all the snakes along the river and we figured this might be a problem. But, as it turned out, we saw nothing more ferocious than an opossum."

The boys also fared well insofar as mechanical difficulties were concerned. "We changed a set of spark plugs on the outboard," they recalled, "but that was all." The vehicle in which they made the trip to McGregor, however, broke down and held the youths up two days.

The entire trip, including all expenses, cost the boys about $40 each. They consider it money well spent. In fact, they are looking ahead to next summer when they expect to return again to the land of the Mississippi. "This time we're going farther north. We might put in at La- in the ammunition storage area and the savings come from what it would cost to mow the area.

3 Commissioners Win Election, Lose Jobs

Stonington, Conn. — P— Stonington voters, in a recent election, chose three street commissioners and adopted a new borough charter.

The new charter abolished the street commission, effective immediately.

Sheep Save Money

Fl. Sill, Okla. — P— A herd of 3,000 sheep is saving the government $12,000 a year at this post, the army estimates. The sheep eat grass north of the ammunition storage area and the savings come from what it would cost to mow the area.

New Edition Catalogs State Vacation Lures

A new catalog of Wisconsin vacation allurements produced by the recreational publicity division of the state conservation department describes Wisconsin holiday opportunities more attractively than ever before.

It is the first new edition in several years of the basic vacation promotion literature of the state that is distributed by hundreds of thousands of copies each season to prospective Wisconsin vacation visitors.

The new edition shows several departures from previous publicity approaches.

The principal state recreational zones are described separately, with special emphasis given to the characteristics that are unique in each.

Resort Owner Nelson Won't Quit Lake Zoning Plans

Demand More Fish Stocking

Governor Under Attack From GOP Opponent, Outboard Motor Firm

Marvin Dillman Hits at Trout Planting Over Warm Water Species

Lac du Flambeau — A spokesman for the tourist resort industry in this lakeland region has demanded a bigger and more effective fish stocking program by the state conservation department for Vilas county and northeastern Wisconsin.

Criticism of the present planting program, and especially the volume of stocking of walleyed pike, was voiced in a public speech by Marvin Dillman, Dillman's remarks attracted wide interest because, as the chairman of the assembly committee on conservation as recently as 1957, he was known as a friend of the conservation administration.

Dillman explained that the tourist trade dollar is the economic mainstay of this region, and that the walleye is the "bread and butter fish" of the vacation country.

He complained that the state is spending too much money on trout propagation and management, and too little on warm water fishes.

"We are failing to keep up in the fishing race with our neighboring states, not to mention Canada," he added, citing figures on walleyed pike production in Minnesota and Michigan.

Dillman said the deterioration of sports fishing will ultimately harm the tourist trade, recalling that when he started his resort 25 years ago fish and predators. He said it was a daily chore to pack the state's rough fish budget in boxes, ice and ship the fish could be more effectively taken by his guests each day, used there, than in the futile "I haven't packed a box of campaign to try to control fish in 10 years," he declared. "Madison carp" an apparition also asked for an end reference to the ceaseless extension of the rough fish carp removal operations in control program of the state the lakes near the capital city to upper Wisconsin, saying and other southern Wisconsin that many of the pike lakes waters.

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — Gov. Gaylord Nelson declared firmly Thursday that he won't be dissuaded from his proposal for the zoning and classification of lakes and other recreational waters to limit their use by conflicting interests.

The governor took note in his news conference that he has been under attack by Philip Kuehn, his Republican opponent, for his plan to inaugurate a system of water use controls.

A principal Wisconsin manufacturer of outboard motors has also denounced the governor's plan he acknowledged.

"Will Support It"

"But I'm sure that the motor boat people will support it when they understand it, as I'm reasonably certain anybody will," the governor said. His plan would remove powered craft from many of the smaller lakes and streams.

Nelson repeated that the state one day soon will be required to prohibit motor boats on many of the smaller bodies of water, but he denied that such a restriction would affect as many as 95 per cent of the 8,000 lakes in the state.

"There are many lakes that are too small to accommodate swimmers, fishermen, boaters, water skiers and cottage owners on the shore," he said. "What's more, big motors or some boats are now damaging the lakes permanently by destroying spawning beds and altering the characteristics of their bottoms," he went on.

Experimental Lake

Nelson said the conservation department, which has a special fund of $87,000 to study the lake zoning proposal, has brought in a plan for an experimental use regulation of Rock lake in Kenosha county in southeastern Wisconsin.

Within five years the zoning program will be in full operation, he said, although he said there will be plenty of protection in the way of local hearings and appeals.

He said ultimately boat horsepower might be graduated, according to the size of lakes involved. On the larger bodies of water there is plenty of space to accommodate all users, he said.

Hammers Away

The governor said he has talked about the need for preserving recreational waters and managing their effective use in virtually every one of his campaign speeches for several months, and has found a good reception for his ideas. He says he also wants to plan for shore line zoning for lakes to protect scenic beauty, and for some form of shoreline control on trout streams to prevent their destruction as fish habitat.

"This is urgent. The pressure upon our public waters will double, perhaps quadruple, during the next few years," he told reporters.

Warden Offers Advice for Dog Training

Warns Sportsmen To Heed Laws When Going Afield

By Chuck Wranosky
Outagamie County Game Warden

As fall approaches, many hunters have or will be taking their dogs in the field for exercise, or just as a companion for an early fall hike.

This is a common practice and it is good for both dog and man as long as you can and do control the dog and his activities so he does not cause damage and as long as you do not violate the law concerning these activities.

First of all, there are young birds and animals present at this time of the year and you must control your dog so he does not harm them. By this time of the year most birds and animals are able to take care of themselves, but a late hatch of birds or a late litter of rabbits could be most vulnerable to your dog, so be careful.

Get Permission

Get permission of the landowner before you enter his property—it is just as important to have permission to exercise your dog and yourself as it is to hunt on another's property. Public hunting grounds which are leased by the conservation department are leased for the hunting seasons only and permission from the landowner is necessary at other times of the year.

It is unlawful to have a shotgun or rifle in your possession or under control from August 15 to the opening of the waterfowl season on any island water or in places where ducks, geese or coot are present.

No Shotgun

It is unlawful to use or shoot game birds or animals which have been obtained from licensed game farms unless you have obtained a permit from the conservation commission for such purpose. There are several restrictions on the issuing of such permits, one of which is that no such permit shall be issued where such training would be injurious to wild game populations.

It is unlawful to possess any firearms or ammunition other than a hand gun loaded with blank cartridge while training hunting dogs on game during the closed season for hunting such game. In other words, if you have your dog with you and he should work on any bird or animal and you possessed any gun except as described above, you would be in violation.

So enjoy your early fall hike—get permits from the landowner, but leave your gun at home, it could get you in serious trouble.

Authorize Modest Beginning For Grant County Youth Camp

The state conservation commission has authorized a large five years ago modest beginning for the Wisconsin state park, at youth camp in Grant county for which southwestern Wisconsin legislators have been clamoring for years.

A $50,000 plan from the state conservation department, which includes a building and a water and sanitary facilities for the camp, but there has not been an assurance given that the camp would be authorized. The department insists that it does not have the money available.

Legislators from the region, including Assemblyman Hugh Harper of Grant county, insist to the contrary that such a camp was "promised" by the department, out of a $500,000 park improvement effort.

Tells Sen. Draheim Regulation Has Helped Cut Down Illegal Kill Of Wisconsin's Big Deer Herd

By Jay Reed
Post-Crescent Outdoor Editor

The law which prevents transportation of high-powered rifles during certain times of the year has done much good for the state's deer herd, George F. Sprecher, assistant director of the conservation department, has declared.

Sprecher delivered his opinion in a letter to State Sen. William A. Draheim, Neenan who had asked for a clarification of the regulation.

The law, commonly known as the "M-40 regulation," requires that a person wishing to carry a high-powered rifle during specified times of the year must obtain a permit from the conservation department.

Recently Attacked

It is recognized, Sprecher said, that the wording of law applies to the restricted firearms while they are being transported. This is a part of the law that has been recently attacked by some individuals because it is one of the most controversial, but important.

The department official declared the law has not restricted the use of firearms by those who desire them for legitimate purposes.

Success of the law, according to Sprecher, has come about mainly because enforcement can be and has been applied to hunting activities and hunting conditions.

Main Highways

No attempt has been made, Sprecher wrote Sen. Draheim, to inspect automobiles on main highways or roads or those that travel through an area which appear to be going from one place to another as a vehicle transporting individuals or material. Apprehensions have been made of individuals possessing illegal firearms in automobiles along the highways only when there was evidence that the parties were using the vehicles to assist them in actual hunting.

They would be driving slowly along game areas watching the fields or throwing lights into them and would be giving reason to believe that the parties were looking for wild animals and when in deer areas, more specifically deer themselves.

Repeal of Law

Sprecher said the department has issued between 1,200 and 1,900 M-40 permits each year. "We believe," he said, "that individuals who desire to violate the law do not apply for permits for some other purpose since we have no record that an individual who had obtained a permit had killed deer illegally."

Sprecher said repeal of the law, which is being asked by some groups, would serve only to make it easier for road hunters to transport rifles in their automobiles for the purpose of illegally killing deer.

He noted the regulation has been in effect for about 25 years and is generally accepted by most residents.

He said the department credits the law with having "saved thousands of deer in Wisconsin."

Dodgers Deal Braves' Hopes 5 to 3 Jolt

Howard, Williams, Sherry Combine To Defeat Buhl

Milwaukee — (P) The fatal number for the Milwaukee Braves in the National league pennant race is down to 13. Any combination of 13 Pittsburgh victories or Milwaukee defeats will eliminate the Braves.

The Los Angeles Dodgers handed the Braves' dim hopes a jolt Friday night by registering a 5-3 victory before a disappointed turnout of 19,732 at County stadium.

The loss, coupled with league-leading Pittsburgh's 4-3 decision over Chicago, dropped Milwaukee seven full games behind the Pirates. And the Braves have just 19 games left.

2-Game Streak Frank Howard, a big rookie outfielder, and pitchers Stan Williams and Larry Sherry combined to help stop Milwaukee's 2-game winning streak.

Howard drove in one of the Dodgers' two runs in the first inning with a single and doubled home two more to break a 2-2 tie against Braves starter Bob Buhl in the sixth.

Buhl, who took his ninth loss while seeking his fifteenth victory, deserved a better fate. The second Los Angeles run was unearned because of a fielding error by Al Dark in left field. And an error by second baseman "Red" Schoendienst paved the way to another unearned tally in the eighth.

The Braves scored twice in the fourth when Eddie Mathews singled to center, stretching his hitting streak to 12 straight games, and Hank Aaron followed with his thirty-sixth homer, a drive to right center high over the 392-foot mark.

Golden Chance The Braves had a golden chance in their half of the eighth when Williams issued his first walk. Billy Bruton singled and Del Crandall reached first on an error to fill the bases.

Then, Sherry, an old nemesis, came in from the bullpen. Sherry struck out Mathews on a 3-2 count, and Aaron grounded weakly to first, a problem that is likely to dog him until election day — his Roman Catholic religion.

At an airport news conference, he was asked about a statement of a group of Protestant leaders headed by Dr. Norman Vincent Peale, who said a Catholic president would be under pressure from his church to breach the principle of separation of church and state.

Religious Issue

Kennedy said he took this as questioning "my loyalty to the United States . . . I think he has questioned my ability to fulfill my constitutional oath."

Kennedy added he's convinced separation of church and state is good for the country. "I believe in that just as strongly as Dr. Peale or anybody else."

Kennedy also took up the civil rights issue, declaring the Republican party for eight years "has failed to take one constructive step toward guaranteeing equal opportunity to all Americans."

"Only a president willing to use all the resources of his high office," he said, "can provide the leadership, the determination and the direction which are essential if we are to eliminate racial and religious discrimination from American society."

Republican Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York carried his campaigning for the Nixon ticket into neighboring New Jersey yesterday. He told a Newark audience of GOP contributors that the communists have been planning to take over Cuba for at least 17 years.

Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson, Kennedy's running mate, told a New York news conference that anyone who thinks religion will be a decisive factor in the south underestimates the intelligence and patriotism of southerners. He predicted Kennedy would do well in the south.

Earlier, Donna did a million dollars worth of damage to the little island of St. Maarten and brought hard rain and wind to Cuba. However, the Cuban coast missed the worst of the blow as Donna veered northward.

Donna's preliminary gusts hit Miami about noon yesterday. The storm was still raging. The storm was still raging well into day. Winds hit 97 m.p.h. shortly after 8 a.m., and skies were so dark it seemed the sun had forgotten to rise.

Bobcats Quit Loop to be Independent

Green Bay — The defending champion Green Bay Bobcats have withdrawn from the Central Hockey league and will play as an independent in the 1960-61 season, President James M. Mancini announced today.

The decision was made by the board of directors of Green Bay Hockey, Inc., sponsor of the Bobcats, because "We felt at least two of the teams were not competitive last season and indications were they would not be strong enough in the coming season," Mancini said.

"The public has supported us well," he added, "and we want to give them the best brand of hockey possible. By playing a strong independent schedule, we feel we can give them better hockey."

The Bobcats made a run-away of the 1959-60 Central league race in their first CHL season, piling up a 20-4 record dethroning the Rochester Mustangs, who had reigned for five straight years before Green Bay's entry. They also swept the league's playoffs, winning seven of eight games.

Off Farm Work Suggested For Low Income Families

BY KAT PAGEL
Post-Crescent News Service
Escanaba, Mich. — Creating more opportunities for low income farmers to work off their farms was advocated here Wednesday by True D. Morse, undersecretary of the U.S. department of agriculture.

Such a program, he said, would accomplish a good deal more than price supports. Operators of most small, marginal farms, he declared, wouldn't prosper even if props were pegged at 200 per cent of parity.

Opening Session
"I'm not talking about moving people off their farms," the undersecretary declared. "I'm advocating a program to develop jobs that will make it possible for even more people to live in the country."

Morse spoke at the opening session of the regional conference on resource development for Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota. The 3-day meeting has drawn nearly 200 professionals and volunteer community leaders from the fields of agriculture, industry, business and education.

New Information
Three goals for the conference were outlined in the keynote address by Dr. N. P.

Solicitation of 244 mercantile firms and their executives and employees will begin Monday in the 1960 United Red Feather Campaign.

Co-chairmen of the division are Ralph Moehring, general manager of the S. C. Shannon company and Forrest Muck, merchandise manager of the Wisconsin Michigan Power company.

Moehring was selected to lead this division on the basis of the plaque award secured by his firm for results from executive and employee solicitation last year. Muck is a previous Community Fund president and budget committee chairman.

The division's goal will be $13,300 of the $159,252 campaign goal.

Team captains for the division are Clarence Lembecke, Loren Lillie, Louis Dietz, George Hoffer, Max Polisky, Eli Jandrin, Wright Smith and Peter Heid.

Heading the national firms section is Arthur Dietrich. Team captains are Aaron Dix, Eugene Eacret and Clinton Clark.

Heckler Questions Sen. Kennedy on Religious Issue
With Kennedy in California — Sen. John F. Kennedy ran into heckling on his Catholic religion as he whistle-stopped down the San Joaquin valley.

A throng at Modesto cheered the Democratic nominee loudly as he answered sharply a religious question thrown at him from the crowd at the conclusion of a rear platform talk.

An unidentified spectator asked Kennedy if he believed all Protestants were heretics. "No," Kennedy replied. "and I hope you don't believe all Catholics are."

"May I say that it seems to me that the great struggle today is between those who believe in no God and those who believe in God."

"I really don't see why we should engage in close debate over what you may believe and what I may believe. That is my privilege and your privilege."

Ralston, director of Michigan's cooperative extension service. "The farms are too small or the land is too poor and unproductive," Ralston said. "The 1960 census will show an equal number or even more rural non-farm families who have low incomes. Their standard of living often is lower than that of the poorest farmers," Morse noted. Some farmers can solve their financial problems by becoming more efficient or developing better markets. Morse advised community leaders to look first to see if existing industries and business places could be expanded. Many communities are doing this by offering special tax incentives or providing capital.

practice, you should come to this conclusion in far less time than it has taken you to read this. We're just spelling it out one letter at a time.

You now make a realistic assumption. West holds ei- ther the ace of clubs or the king of diamonds, but not both. The same is true of East: he holds one but not both.

Diamond Best

If you start the clubs you will go down as the cards are shown. East will capture a club and return the suit. You will lose two clubs, one dia- mond and a heart.

Can you do any better if you start the diamonds? If phabetically will be the hours East holds the ace of clubs, West must hold the king of diamonds. Suppose you lead a low diamond toward dum- my's queen.

If this is the case, West must step up with the king of diamonds. Dummy's queen will win a trick and you can later discard two clubs from the dummy on the ace and jack of diamonds. You will lose only one club and one dia- mond. That's fine.

One last test. What will happen if you start the dia- monds and it turns out that East rather than West has the king of diamonds? In that case, West must have the ace of clubs. You will lose only one club trick, and the con- tract is still safe.

In short, you are sure to make your contract if you start the diamonds. You may well go down if you start the clubs.

Just as easy as throwing a rope into the air and climbing it!

make the face of the cat. Oth- erwise it is made by cutting, tying and braiding. Any kind of stocking will do, whether it is of rayon, silk, cotton or wool. Cut the foot off. If the stocking has a rib- bed or double top, cut the ears out of that part because the heavier goods will cause the ears to stand up better. The pattern in Figure 1 snows how to cut the pointed ears, which are marked A and B. It also shows how the other end of the stocking leg should be cut to make three tribs. These are to be braided for the cat's tail (see Figure 2). The ears should be pointed and about an inch and a half long. The portion forming the cat's body, including the head, should be about 10 inches long and the tail should be 10 or 12 inches long. Cut the strips for the tail a little higher in the back than in the front. When the tail has been braided, tie the end of it with thread. Tie the bottom of the ears with thread and curve them forward. Then stuff the bottom and head of the cat with cotton, poked in through the head. When the cat is nice and fat sew up the opening between the ears. You may also take a few stitches in the ears and hem them at the edges to make them stand up properly. Tie a ribbon around the cat's neck and sew on beads or buttons for eyes. With black thread, embroider the cat's whiskers, nose and mouth.

Neenah Man Charged With Law Practice

Complaint Seeks to End Alleged Action As Trucker Attorney

Madison — A complaint charging John J. Keller, Oak-crest drive, Neenah, with practicing law without a license has been issued by Atty. Gen. John W. Reynolds at the request of the State Bar of Wisconsin.

The complaint said that Keller had been warned by the attorney general's office but continued to draft and file trucking leases with the public service commission and to appear at hearings before the commission as paid representative of various truckers. He has examined witnesses and issued legal opinions to the truckers in connection with the hearings, the complaint said.

entrance of a building containing a polling place. The sticker should be of a size that fits within the space provided for write-in candidates. Though an "X" is not required, Gaige S. Roberts, supervisor of the division of elections and records, wrote that he would recommend a square containing an "X" be printed on the sticker after Gillingham Boys 4-H club is devoting the majority of its meeting at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the Gillingham school to the craft program.

The name of the candidate desired may be written in the blank space underneath the listing for the office but the square for the "X" does not have to be marked to make the vote valid. It is recommended though that the square be marked also for easier identification by the election officials.

To receive a place on the ballot as the party's nominee, the write-in candidate must receive 10 per cent of the average party vote cast for governor in the district at the two previous general elections, Roberts indicated.

The third assembly district comprises the cities and townships of Neenah and Menasha.

Sheriff Contest
The Republican sheriff race pits three candidates against each other. They are Lawrence E. Bartlett, Oshkosh, a member of the county police force, Richard "Bud" Lowell, Oshkosh, a member of the Oshkosh police force, and Jack Schindler, town of Menasha, a deputy sheriff and operator of a car towing service and filling station.

Two candidates are seeking the nomination for assemblyman from the First district which comprises 12 Oshkosh wards. They are Earl E. Fuller, who is retiring this year as county treasurer, and William Steiger, 21-year-old University of Wisconsin law student.

Unopposed for county posts on the Republican ticket are Nell A. Hoffman for county clerk, Frank E. Luedeke for county treasurer, Dr. George A. Steele for coroner, William E. Osborne for clerk of court, Jack Steinhilber for district attorney, Bernice L. Fuller for register of deeds, Theodore E. Stearns for surveyor, and Floyd Shurbert for second district assemblyman. All except Luedeke are the incumbents.

The only contest on the Democratic ticket for a county post is for county clerk which is being sought by Mrs. Arden Grutzmacher and Mr. Imogene P. Leetch. The other candidates are Frederick J. Sperling for county treasurer, Clarence Resch for sheriff, Dr. Vernon A. Brabazon for coroner, Mrs. Gracia Kalata for clerk of court, Duane G. Phillis for district attorney, Willard R. Boelke for register of deeds, James Jung for surveyor, William Manske for first district assemblyman, Herman Brandt for second district assemblyman and Robert E. Nordlander for third district assemblyman.

Justice Finds Speeder Guilty

Brother Complains About Arresting Officer's Words

Menasha — Gaynel Klockzien, 22, 370 Ninth street, was found guilty of speeding Friday by Police Justice Arthur J. Ales. He had pleaded innocent Aug. 22 of the offense, which occurred the night before.

Klockzien, whose driver's license has been suspended until Oct. 23 for other traffic offenses, was fined $10 and costs.

During cross-examination he admitted driving 30 m.p.h., 5 miles over the speed limit. He was clocked at 40 by Patrolmen John Chapleau.

Klockzien's brother, Aaron, accused Chapleau of using rough language toward himself at the time of the arrest. Further testimony developed that Aaron, who had been riding in the car's back seat, did most of the talking at the arrest scene.

Ales warned Gaynel not to drive in the next year, or else he will be jailed, since state law specifies the term for driving while one's license is revoked.

Ales took under advisement until Tuesday a decision on the charge of failure to yield the right-of-way against Ronald E. Romnek, 25, route 2, Menasha.

Romnek was charged after his auto and a motorcycle operated by Donald Liebhauser, 16, 920 Eighth street, collided at Third and Racine streets Aug. 16 as the car was turning left.

Liebhauser, on crutches Friday in court, received a leg injury in the accident.

City Atty. Richard J. Stefens contended that a driver may not deviate from his lane of traffic without regard to the safety of others. He asked Ales to impose a minimum sentence if he finds Romnek guilty.

PROMOTE . . . DEPUTY SHERIFF JOHN (Jack) SCHINDLER
REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE FOR SHERIFF
WINNEBAGO COUNTY
Deputy Sheriff for 4 Years (Winnebago Co. 1957-1960)
YOUNG — HONEST — VIGOROUS
YOUR MOST CAPABLE CANDIDATE
Life-time Resident, 30 Years Local Business Man, 10 Years
7 Years Fireman High School Graduate
The Only Republican Candidate From Neenah-Menasha Area
WHY I AM A CANDIDATE FOR SHERIFF —
I am a candidate for Sheriff of Winnebago County because, I believe, the accident and death rates on all Winnebago County roads could be reduced, by adequate police patrolling and strict enforcement of traffic laws on all county and main roads.
I believe that all county and main town roads could be adequately patrolled by the county police without additional cost to our county:
1. If county police officers would be prohibited from loitering and congregating in public places while on duty.
2. If the serving of papers and investigation of crimes would be done by the sheriff and a special investigator (a man trained for this position), not by county police patrolmen. This would enable county police officers to use all their duty time patrolling county and main town roads.
3. By removing any unnecessary county policemen from highways which are already adequately patrolled by state police, such as U.S. 41 because, I believe it is more important to apprehend speeders doing 100 miles per hour in a 35 mile zone of a residential area than speeders driving 100 miles per hours on U. S. 41.
I believe we should have a well-organized Civil Defense and Deputy Sheriff organization for our protection in time of disaster.
IF ELECTED SHERIFF OF WINNEBAGO COUNTY, I WILL DISCONTINUE ALL BUSINESS OPERATIONS AND ALL OTHER POSITIONS I NOW HOLD. THIS WILL ENABLE ME TO PERFORM THE DUTIES OF THE COUNTY SHERIFF 24 HOURS A DAY, 365 DAYS A YEAR.
YOUR VOTE TUESDAY, SEPT. 13 WILL BE APPRECIATED

Tallies Deciding Touchdown on 65-Yard Run With Intercepted Pass Midway in 4th Period

Plainfield scored after the next kickoff with senior halfback Larry Dittmer going the final 24 yards off tackle. The conversion try was blocked.

The visitors only had 16 boys in uniform because most of their players come from the rural area and they didn't have the required 14 days of practice. Instead of waiting, they might be expected to be behind a couple of good blocks. The point attempt again failed. Later in the period, Plainfield had the ball on the Winneconne two on third down but was back on the 14 when it ran out of downs.

Wolves March
Late in the third period, Winneconne quick kicked to the Plainfield 11. Dittmer, a senior out for football for the first time, in four plays, took the ball to the 35 and, on a quick opener, halfback Tom Lewallen broke loose for a 65-yard TD gallop. The visitors tried to run for the point but were smeared.

Winneconne got to the Plainfield 38 after the next kickoff. On the replay, Severens passed on a first down play. Severens intercepted Steve Vandenberg's pass and raced 65 yards untouched. A good rush downs and Plainfield took the pass go astray.

Souvenir Picture Frame Can Enhance Favorite Snapshot

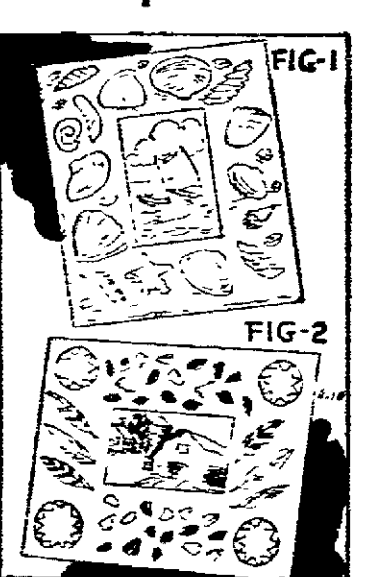

BY CAPPY DICK

Want to know what to do with the sea shells, stones, charms and other odds and ends you collected during summer vacation? Use them to make a souvenir frame for a picture postcard or a snapshot of the place where you had the most fun.

First find an old picture frame with glass in it, of a size that will be suitable for the photo or postcard. At a paint or hardware store, buy a small can of putty. Spread the putty on the frame, using an old table knife to get it on smoothly.

Press the shells, stones and other trinkets into the putty as shown in Figures 1 and 2 of the drawing above. When this has been done, set the frame aside to allow the putty to dry and harden.

If you do not have a suitable frame, make one from heavy cardboard and a piece of glass. First paste the top edge of the postcard or snapshot to the cardboard. Lay a piece of glass over the picture and attach it to the cardboard with adhesive tape running around the edge of the glass.

Press curios into putty

Spread a deep layer of putty around the cardboard, also covering the edges of the glass. Press your souvenirs into the damp putty and allow it to harden.

In addition to vacation souvenirs, you can use unusual buttons, pocket pieces, foreign coins, beads and many other curious things you have collected.

State Tax Head to Ask for More Men

Gronouski Seeks Staff of 48, Two Additional District Offices

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

State Tax Commissioner John A. Gronouski is preparing to ask for authority at fall budget hearings of the state legislature to increase his property tax supervision staff by about 20 men, to a total strength of 48.

He would set up six district supervision offices instead of the four operating now. Objective would be a more accurate compilation of the state's "true value" tax base which is now the key to about 85 separate fiscal situations controlled by state law.

Taxpayer Concern

The issue is one of direct concern to all property tax payers, state officials explain, because:

The distribution of state and county and joint school district taxes among separate municipalities is according to the state-assessed valuations rather than those of the municipal assessor.

The state's multi-million dollar aid appropriations, more than six years' such as the steadily increasing school aids, are distributed in large part according to state-assessed value figures.

True Value

Thus if the state "true value" data is in error, there will result unfair and inaccurate distribution of tax liability, on the one hand, and state aid payments, on the other.

The state supervisors are required to assist local assessors in their computation of tax values for local levy purposes. There has been less of that help than there should be, according to the state tax office.

The state next January, men are also anxious to be sure that the local assessors are filing correct reports on new construction developments in Sparta and Wausau are now of their jurisdiction, but would establish a Madison office to reduce the geographical responsibilities of the Fond du Lac district, and establish a new office in Barron to handle the particular problems of the far northwestern corner of the state.

China Seat in UN Opposed

Ikeda Announces Japan Will Vote Against Entry

Nagoya, Japan—Prime Minister Hayato Ikeda said Friday Japan would not vote against the entry of communist China to the United Nations.

But he told newsmen he favored a resumption of private trade, suspended since 1953, between Japan and the mainland.

He gave these answers to questions during a stumping tour in anticipation of new general elections expected around Nov. 20.

Ikeda said he would follow the policy of the previous Kishi government on the China admission question and indicated there would be no change as long as Japan's western allies, the United States, Britain and France maintain their opposition to Peiping.

The prime minister said he had no plans for visiting the United States at this time and did not plan to invite President Eisenhower to visit Japan.

Eisenhower's scheduled visit here in June was called off after leftists demonstrated violently against the U. S. Japan security treaty.

Foreign Minister Zenaro Kosaka leaves Saturday for the United States to attend the U. N. general assembly. He will meet American and Canadian leaders prior to his appearance before the world body.

Officially explained that in earlier times complaints against violators were filed with local district attorneys for prosecution. Today Atty. Gen. John W. Reynolds gets all the requests for prosecution and has assigned two specialists of his staff to the task.

Madison—A vigorous campaign for the enforcement of the public building and place of employment safety and sanitation codes of the state industrial commission is underway.

The office of the attorney general has filed scores of actions in the local courts of the state during the last year against employers and other proprietors for violations of the safety orders of the state industrial commission.

Matthias A. Schmeiz, industrial commission chairman, explains that his field inspectors are not especially increasing the number of complaints filed against building owners but that the commission is determined to require compliance with the orders and to arrange prosecution of violators.

Old Cases
"Some of these cases have been lying around on desks here for years," said the commission head.

There was a reluctance, apparently, to enforce our orders, for various reasons. We have decided that we want to have uniform treatment throughout the state. If there is a violation there is going to be enforcement. We are going to see that there is a respect for the industrial commission program and its application of the laws. I don't think there has always been that respect."
